

President Barack Obama
1600 Pennsylvania Avenue NW
Washington, DC 20500

Cc: Lisa Jackson, Administrator, Environmental Protection Agency

July 18, 2012

Dear President Obama,

We, the undersigned trade associations and 712 business owners, thank you and the Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) for taking the first step to protect Bristol Bay from the hazards of the proposed Pebble Mine by conducting a scientific assessment of the region's watershed. We believe this comprehensive scientific assessment makes a powerful case for the proactive protection of Bristol Bay's world-class wild salmon resource and its 14,000 associated jobs through the use of an important provision of the Clean Water Act—Section 404(c). We ask that you act on this before the end of July 2012 to ensure you can complete this process before January 20, 2013, and give this broad and diverse coalition of fishing, hunting, jewelry, food and investment companies the certainty we need for future planning and investment.

Our letter joins a large and growing assortment of businesses that have called on you to stand for Bristol Bay, including leaders in the jewelry industry, investment firms, outdoor industry, and commercial fishermen.

The proposed Pebble Mine in Bristol Bay poses numerous significant and potentially long-lasting threats to these jobs and economic activities. As the EPA's assessment found, even without a major catastrophe or a series of cumulative spills or leaks, the Pebble project would destroy up to 87 miles of salmon streams and up to 4,200 acres of wetlands. In addition, the Pebble Mine would produce up to 10 billion tons of toxic waste containing copper and other heavy metals that would threaten fisheries, and must be contained—in perpetuity—behind massive earthen dams in an earthquake-prone region.

While we thank you for assessing how future large-scale development projects may affect Bristol Bay, it's not enough.

We believe the common-sense approach to protecting Bristol Bay from the identified negative impacts of Pebble is the advanced use of the Clean Water Act's Section 404(c). This establishes a clear set of protective sideboards now, not later, and provides our salmon and other renewable resource-based businesses the certainty we need to continue to grow and prosper. Bristol Bay's resources have proved sustainable for nearly a century, generating upwards of $500 million annually, and providing roughly 14,000 jobs. The EPA has the authority under the Clean Water Act to invoke Section 404(c), which would give Bristol Bay the protection it needs from mega mining and other large-scale developments, while allowing responsible development and investment to progress.

Although the EPA has been criticized recently by some segments of business and industry for alleged regulatory overreach, we want to make it abundantly clear that as American-based businesses and employers of tens of thousands of Americans, we believe your use of the Clean Water Act to protect Bristol Bay's renewable resources from irreparable harm is the right thing to do, right now.

We are not alone in our support of immediate implementation of Clean Water Act protections; public support in the region for such EPA action is overwhelming. At six recent EPA hearings in Bristol Bay-area towns and villages, an estimated 94 percent of participants testified in favor of the 404(c) protections of the Bristol Bay watershed. In addition, there is wide, bipartisan support for EPA action, in both Alaska and across the country. For instance, in the past few months, Robin Hayes, the chairman of the North Carolina Republican party, Sen. Maria Cantwell, a Democrat from Washington, and the New York Times all publicly supported EPA's work in Bristol Bay.

The Obama Administration and the EPA have an opportunity now to guarantee a future for Bristol Bay and the economic ripple effect that its fishery has on our nation. We urge you to act immediately.

Sincerely,

The Alaska Independent Fisherman's Marketing Association - Representing hundreds of commercial fishermen from around the United States

Bristol Bay Regional Seafood Development Association - Representing 2,000 small business owners and their 5,000 employees

Commercial Fishermen for Bristol Bay - National network of 80+ commercial fishing associations

American Fly Fishing Trade Association - Representing over 500 businesses – primarily small businesses – in the fly fishing industry

American Sportfishing Association - Representing nearly 800 member businesses in the sport fishing industry

The Chefs Collaborative – Representing over 1000 chefs to change the sustainable food landscape

And all these individual businesses throughout the United States:
